MADSEN TALKS ON LAKE FISH

(Special to The Herald.)

Harvard has notified Yale that it cannot Prevo, Jan. 28.—County Fish and Game Warden Madsen, who has gone to Salt Lake to interest the state legislature in the Powell's slough fish hatchery, has the roise on March 15, and gives as the reason the present unsettled condition of the scarcity of bass in Utah lake:

"Some sixteen or seventeen years ago there were planted in Utah lake 25,000 there were planted with the same time the base were railing of intercollegiate and the present line, at least.

The following riticle, which appeared in the Harvard Crimson this morning explaints with Harvard Will be unable to result the fish in the lake were still increasing very rapidly.

"The athletic committee announced year of the witchild, and the same time the bass were only a few, probably three or lanted the carp escaped from some of the private ponds near the lake, and as of the private ponds near the lake, and as the first two years. At this same time the lake was alive with them, and the water. The members of this association, however, disagree with Mr. Madsen on some of his points. It is conceded that base eggs will not hatch in muddy waters, and it is believed that spawning grounds should be established near the lake where the base could be raised until they reach an age where they can take care of themselves in Utah lake. It is also agreed by all the fishermen who have made this matter a study that it is the carp which has destroyed the vegetable life around the shores of the lake, which has in turn killed the base spawning grounds and killed duck feed, which has practically driven the lucks away from the Utah lake.

However, the consensus of opinion at these meetings was to the effect that it these meetings was to the effect that it was the market fishermen who got away with the bass in Utah lake, and not the carp. Those posted on the habits of fish say that bass will drive carp out in time and that bass will feed on carp spawn. They claim that the sciners in Utah lake caught the bass out of the lake, and believe now that it is folly for the state to plant more bass unless this greaties is to plant more bass unless this practice is stopped, as the same thing will occur again. While it is against the law to seine bass, it is claimed bass were seined, and it is for this reason that the bass meeting yesterday between Rawhide Kelland it is for this reason that the bass meeting yesterday between Rawhide Kelland is set to be a fight in San Francisco next month, and Morris Levy will be the individual to promote it. # QUITS FAKING--

Lesson to Some of Utah Sure Thing Sports.

New York. Jan. 26 .- Fighting is more | Joe Gans, the greatest fighter the world

Patti nor Irving, nor none of them actors, ever had anything on Britt and me the way we did it.

"That was when I was under Herford, before I made up my mind to fight for myself, and fight on the level, and try to get right with the people.

"At first the plan was for Britt to win. Herford fixed it up that way. I was to get 67½ per cent of the purse for losing. But I wouldn't stand for that. I told Herford that I'd go out and win anyway. So he had to change it, and fix it for me to win from Britt on a foul. Britt got the 67½ per cent then for losing. He was to make a great fight for five rounds and then lose his head and foul me. Graney was to give the decision. It all went off the way we rehearsed it. We got 32½ per cent for our end, and we made something on the betting. It was not very much—about $5.000.

Gained Nothing by Faking.

"I didn't get anything worth mentioning out of my fake fights. It was just like there was four or five sieves above me, and the money had to be poured down through them. Each sieve held some of it, and the dump at the bottom that I got was mighty small.

"When I got free from Herford I made up my mind to be straight—the way I up my mind to be straight—the way I wanted to be—and cut loose from everything crooked. It feels mighty good to hear people all over the country talk to me like they have confidence in me. It makes a big difference. And it pays to be straight, too. In the last year I have fought for purses aggregating $72,000, and my share has been enough to make me independent.

Well, I don't figure much on his beating me. I tried to force him to fight me in Frisco after I left Herford, and he wouldn't do it. I told everybody about the fake and he only denied it first, and then roasted me as a self-confessed faker.

"I expect to beat Britt, all right. He's a more clever boxer than Herman or Nelson, but he isn't aggressive or dangerous enough to make me work as a senenough to make me worry any. After that I'll fight the rest of the lightweights.

Schreck Says He Made Bunk Champion Jump Through Window.

'Chicago, Ill., Jan. 26 .- "I wonder if Tommy Burns remembers the night he jumped out of a window to dodge me?" Mike Schreck remarked recently. "Not long ago, while we were both in Los Angeles. Tom McCarey couldn't decide which one of us he liked the better." Mike continued. "He said if we would make a match and fight he would keep the winner and make a star of him. Burns wouldn't listen to it, and then McCarey took him into a side room and talked to him. Later McCarey came out of the room alone and said it was all off. I waited for Burns to come out, but he didn't do so, Then I went and looked in the room. It was empty, but a window—the only way a man could have got out—was wide open. Now what do you think of that?" Tommy Burns remembers the night he Mike said he would like to have met Burns and talked over that and a few other incidents of their previous meeting. "I licked him and he never licked me and never could." Mike continued.

HANDBALL AT Y. M. C. A.

The result of Saturday's games between contestants in the senior handball tournament at the Y. M. C. A. resulted in a victory for ingebretsen over Brown in well played games. J. P. Fanning vs. Tempest, Fanning winner, Schnell won over T. J. Fanning.

Next week Schnell plays Stewart, who won out over his opponent some time ago, and J.P. Fanning, winner of the Fanning-Tempest contest, plays Ingebretsen. The winner of the Schnell-Stewart contest plays Richardson, and the winner in this game plays the winner of the Fanning-Ingebretsen go The last two winners then play in the final contest, which decides where the championship lies.

KELLY GOES TO OREGON.

Amateur Sprinter.

University of Oregon, Eugene, Jan. 26.—Concerning the conflicting reports as to whether Dan J. Kelly is to run for the University of Oregon this spring or the Multnomah Amateur Athletic club, the Oregon sprinter said this morning:

"I will run for the University of Oregon in all the track meets that the college may contest in. I want that clearly understood. At the same time I am busy with my studies, but as soon as they are over I will be out training with the rest of the squad for the spring track meets." DILLON HALF SISTER TO MULE.

Memphis, Tenn. Jan. 26.—Information reaching the local colony of horsemen at winter quarters at the "Two-Minute" track, Ben Kenney, Edward Geers and other noted trainers and drivers, is to the effect that Lou Diflon, the trotting queen, will soon wear the unique distinction of being a half-sister to a mule.

Letters received from California, where Lou Milton, the 25-year-old dam of Lou Dillon, is stationed, declare that a mule foal is shortly exclare that a mule foal is shortly expected. It is believed here that C. 6. G. Billings, Lou Dillon's owner, will buy the mule at almost any figure for the purpose of Oslerizing it, as there has been mention made of freak collectors purchasing Lou Milton's foal for exhibition nursesses.

BAN WILL MEET HARRY.

Chicago. Jan. 26.—President Johnson of the American Baseball league received a telegram yesterday from President Pulliam of the National league, agreeing to a conference on schedules in Cleveland next Monday, and it is possible the two presidents will get together on that day to adjust as many conflicting days as possible in their 1907 playing schedules, the drafts of which have been prepared.

Keene's great race little lad rode 387 winners, ninety more horse, which died early last summe than the best previous record, wrested by Eugene Hildebrand from Tod Slean in 1904. Critics of Miller, and there are not a few, despite the worship of the great mass of race-geers, will point out that Miler had exceptional opportunities, and that in a vast majority of races he was on much the best horse, which could have won for almost any other jockey. Always Does His Best.

Miller always did his best and for this reason alone should be a pattern to all riders, especially to the young apprentices who hope to edge into the limelight when age and fickle fortune have pulled Miller from the pedestal of public admiration, as has been every other jockey idol before him.

On the face of the returns Miller is the greatest of jockeys. But there have been many riders of greater ability. Martin and Radtke never failed to outride him when they so listed, but Radtke's work was ragged, and he now rests under the suspension and suspicion of the jockey club, while Martin is fast falling victim to a serious vice contracted in trying to offset the weakness engendered by excessive reducing.

More than once however, the finger of suspicion has been pointed at Martin. Miller, because of his character, is deserving of praise without stint. His earnings last season eclipsed those of the president of the United States, perhaps
